Sven Brülisauer new Head of Consulting at Open Systems

Zurich, 4 January 2010 – Sven Brülisauer has taken up his new position as Head of Consulting at Open Systems, one of the leading Swiss global network security providers.

As per 1 January 2010, Sven Brülisauer, as Head of Consulting, is now in charge of the area of consulting at Open Systems AG. An internationally acknowledged expert for IT security, he has worked in the company in various functions since 2000.

After gaining his degree in electronic engineering at ETH Zurich, Brülisauer was employed as a developer for Siemens and as an IT consultant for ATAG Debis (today Ernst & Young). Over the past ten years Brülisauer has filled a number of positions at Open Systems in the Audit/Risk Management, Professional Services, Development und Consulting departments. Sven Brülisauer is a Certified Information Systems Security Professional (CISSP). Since 2002 Brülisauer has represented Open Systems as primary contact in the renowned association FIRST (Forum of Incident Response and Security Teams), a global association of internationally recognized CERTS (Computer Emergency Response Teams).

«Besides his excellent technology skills, Sven Brülisauer also has a grasp of business issues that is vital in consultancy work and when designing security solutions,» says Ogi Stanovcic, Chief Business Officer and board member at Open Systems. «This combination – along with the enormous personal dedication to our company that he has demonstrated over the past decade – makes him the ideal person to head up and expand our consulting services.»
